

ON THE GRAPE VINE

One of our members, from the Adelaide Hills, reports it is not only Budgies that get caught in "Catch-All" type mouse traps. Over the last few weeks he has removed two very much alive Brown Snakes from his traps.

One would assume the snakes were far from happy when the seemingly inviting hole that smelt deliciously of mouse, suddenly attacked them and tried to force them through into the capture compartment of the trap. No doubt our member got quite a shock when he found the first unwelcome guest in the trap, and would have removed it very carefully indeed.

In light of the above it would pay to check thoroughly before handling this type of trap in future. It would seem you might just catch more than you bargained for!
